Plaintiffs respectfully submit this memorandum of law, the Statement of Material Facts pursuant to Local Rule 56.1, the declarations of plaintiff Jose L. Peluso, dated April 17, 2008, with annexed exhibits (the "Peluso Dec."), plaintiff Silvia Beatriz Ovejero, dated April 14, 2008, with annexed exhibits (the "Ovejero Dec."), plaintiff Rudolf Erb, dated April 10, 2008, with annexed exhibits (the "Erb Dec."), plaintiff Eduardo Hector Sorroche, dated April 22, 2008, with annexed exhibits (the "Sorroche Dec."), plaintiff Cesare De Iuliis, dated May 9, 2008, with annexed exhibits (the "Iuliis Dec."), and Regina Alter, dated June 25, 2008, with annexed exhibits (the "Alter Dec."), in support of plaintiffs' motions (i) for summary judgment as against defendant The Republic of Argentina ("Argentina") pursuant to Rule 56 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure ("FRCP") and Local Rule 56.1; and (ii) to strike Defendant's First Request for the Production of Documents, dated February 25, 2008 (the "Requests"), pursuant to Rules 26(c), 26(d) and 34(b) of the FRCP.¹

Preliminary Statement

The following undisputed facts establish that plaintiffs are entitled to summary judgment:

- Plaintiffs purchased certain bonds that were issued by Argentina (the "Bonds");
- The obligations of Argentina with respect to the Bonds are "unconditional." See Lightwater Corp. Ltd. v. The Republic of Argentina, No. 02 Civ. 3804, 02 Civ. 3808, 02 Civ. 5932 (TPG), 2003 WL 1878420, at *4 (S.D.N.Y. Apr. 14, 2003) (the "Lightwater Decision"); *EM Ltd. v. - Argentina defaulted on its obligations with respect to the Bonds. See Lightwater Decision at *2, 4; see also EM Ltd. Decision at *2; and
- This Court has jurisdiction to grant plaintiffs summary judgment.

In addition, at a March 28, 2006 hearing, the Court directed that for purposes of summary judgment, plaintiffs need only produce current statements or similar documents (the “March 28th Order”).³ See March 28th Tr. at 9:20-21, 16:15-23, 17:12-15, 25:15-20.

Pursuant to the March 28th Order, annexed to the plaintiffs’ declaration are documents demonstrating their current ownership of the Bonds. Notwithstanding the foregoing, in the Requests, Argentina seeks the production of documents that far exceed those documents the Court held necessary to demonstrate plaintiffs’ beneficial ownership.

Accordingly and as more amply demonstrated below, there are no genuine triable issues of fact, and the unimpeachable documentary evidence establishes that plaintiffs are entitled to summary judgment and the Requests should be stricken.

² True and correct copies of the Lightwater Decision, EM Ltd. Decision, Mazzini Decision, Mazoral Decision, Moldes Decision, Prima Decision, Morata Decision, Sauco Decision and DCA Decision are annexed to the Alter Dec. as Exhibits 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12 and 13, respectively.

³ A true and correct copy of the Cilli v. The Republic of Argentina, 04 Civ. 6594 (TPG), Hr’g Tr., March 28, 2006 (the “March 28th Tr.”), is annexed to the Alter Dec. as Exhibit 14.

The Undisputed Facts

A. The Bonds

Argentina issued the Bonds pursuant to three different agreements: (i) a Fiscal Agency Agreement, dated December 10, 1993 (the “1993 FAA”); (ii) a Fiscal Agency Agreement, dated as of October 19, 1994 (the “1994 FAA”); and (iii) a Floating Rate Bond Exchange Agreement, dated as of December 6, 1992, and the exhibits annexed thereto (the “FRB Agreement”), among others.⁴

In each of those agreements, Argentina expressly agreed (i) to submit to the jurisdiction of this Court; (ii) that service of process could be made on it by serving its agent, Banco de la Nacion Argentina, here in New York City; (iii) to waive any claim of sovereign immunity; and (iv) that each of the agreements and the bonds issued pursuant thereto would be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of the State of New York. See Compl. Ex. A §§ 22 & 23; Ex. B ¶ 20; Ex. D § 6.07.

Argentina further agreed that its failure to pay interest when due and/or the declaration of a moratorium on its payment obligations would constitute an event of default, entitling each bondholder to institute a lawsuit. See Compl. Ex. A § 12; Ex. C at pp. 7-8; Ex. E, Exhibits 1A, 1B, § 9.

Section 12 of the 1994 FAA and the Form of Global Bond annexed to the 1993 FAA further provide that following either of the foregoing events of default, a note holder, i.e., plaintiffs herein, may give Argentina written notice and declare the principal amount of such Securities held by them to be due and payable immediately. See Compl. Ex. A § 12; Ex. C at p. 8.

⁴ True and correct copies of the 1994 FAA, 1993 FAA and Exhibit 1 thereto (Form of Global Bond) and the FRB Agreement and the exhibits thereto are annexed as Exhibits A, B, C, D and E to the Complaint, respectively.

B. Argentina's Default On The Bonds

On December 24, 2001, Argentina defaulted on the Bonds when it “declared a moratorium on payments of principal and interest on [its] external debt,” including all payments due plaintiff. Mazoral Decision at 2; Moldes Decision at 2; Prima Decision at 2; Morata Decision at 2; Sauco Decision at 2; Lightwater Decision at *2. Since declaring the moratorium, Argentina has further defaulted by failing to make any payment of interest or principal on any of its foreign debt, including the Bonds here at issue. In fact, Argentina concedes that “since December 2001 it has not paid interest or principal” in connection with the Bonds issued pursuant to the 1993 FAA, the 1994 FAA and the FRB Agreement. Ans. at ¶¶ 20, 29 and 36.

This Court has already determined that Argentina’s obligation to pay these amounts is unconditional, and that Argentina’s failure to do so constitutes events of default. See Mazoral Decision at 2 (finding that the Court has jurisdiction and that plaintiffs have unconditional legal right to collect the unpaid interest and to accelerate on bonds issued under the 1993 FAA and the 1994 FAA, among others); Moldes Decision at 2 (finding that the Court has jurisdiction and that plaintiffs have unconditional legal right to collect the unpaid interest and to accelerate on bonds issued under the 1994 FAA, among others); Prima Decision at 2 (finding that the Court has jurisdiction and that plaintiffs have unconditional legal right to collect the unpaid interest and to accelerate on bonds issued under the 1993 FAA and the 1994 FAA, among others); Mazzini Decision at *3 (finding that the Court has jurisdiction and that plaintiffs have unconditional legal right to collect the unpaid interest and to accelerate on bonds issued under the 1993 FAA and the 1994 FAA, among others); Lightwater Decision at *4 (finding Argentina’s obligation unconditional after it had defaulted and bondholder plaintiffs had accelerated obligations on bonds). See also EM Ltd. Decision at *2 (finding “nothing in the record to distinguish this case as to EM’s unconditional legal right to collect on the bonds”).

By reason of Argentina's default, and in accordance with Section 12 of the 1994 FAA and page 8 of the 1993 Global Bond Form, by letter dated December 19, 2007, plaintiffs provided Argentina with written notice that they were declaring the principal and interest on the Bonds issued pursuant to the 1993 FAA and the 1994 FAA to be due and payable. See Compl. at ¶¶ 19 and 28.

C. Plaintiffs' Proof of Ownership

In the March 28th Order, this Court addressed the issue of bondholders' proof of ownership, among other things. The Court directed that in order to demonstrate ownership, bondholders need to submit a declaration attesting to their ownership of the Bonds together with a copy of a current account statement (or similar document).

Accompanying this brief, plaintiffs submitted the following documents:

- Plaintiff Jose L. Peluso attached to the Peluso Dec. an account statement from UBS, dated as of February 2008, demonstrating Mr. Peluso's current ownership of Bonds issued by Argentina pursuant to (1) the 1994 FAA in the aggregated principal amount of $230,000, having the ISIN No. US04011AR16 and CUSIP No. 040114AR1; and (2) the FRB Agreement in the aggregate principal amount of $93,000, having the ISIN No. XS0043120236.
- Plaintiffs Silvia Beatriz Ovejero and David de Lafuente attached to the Ovejero Dec. account statements from UBS, Merrill Lynch and Lehman Brothers as of March 31, 2008, demonstrating their ownership of Bonds issued by Argentina pursuant to (1) the 1993 FAA in the aggregate principal amount of $30,000, having the ISIN No. US040114AH34 and CUSIP No. 040114AH3; and (2) the 1994 FAA in the aggregate principal amounts of (i) $155,000, having the ISIN No. US04011AN02 and CUSIP No. 040114AN0; (ii) $55,000, having the ISIN No. US040114BE93 and CUSIP No. 040114BE9; (iii) $405,000, having the ISIN No. US040114GG96 and CUSIP No. 040114GG9; and (iv) $51,000, having the ISIN No. US040114GH79 and CUSIP No. 040114GH7.
- Plaintiffs Rudolf and Christina Erb attached to the Erb Dec. an account statement from their bank Direktanlage at AG, dated as of March 28, 2008, with a true and correct translation thereof, demonstrating their current ownership of the Bonds issued pursuant to (1) the 1994 FAA in the aggregate principal amount of $41,000, having the ISIN No. US04011FC91 and CUSIP No. 040114FC9; and (2) 1993 FAA in the aggregate principal amount of $20,000, having the ISIN No.

US040114AH34 and CUSIP No. 040114AH3.

- Plaintiffs Eduardo Hector Sorroche, Susana Alicia Costa, Diego Marcos Sorroche and Veronica Sorroche attached to the Sorroche Dec. an account statement from their bank ABN AMRO Bank, dated as of April 11, 2008, with a true and correct translation thereof, demonstrating their current ownership of the Bonds issued pursuant to the FRB Agreement in the aggregate principal amount of $388,000, having the ISIN No. XS0043120236.
- Plaintiffs Cesare De Iuliis and Mirta Beatrice Mandolino attached to the Iuliis Dec. the most recent account statement from their bank Antonveneta ABN AMRO, dated December 31, 2007,⁵ with a true and correct translation thereof, and a letter from their bank, dated May 9, 2008, with a true and correct translation thereof, demonstrating their current ownership of the Bonds issued pursuant to the 1994 FAA in the aggregate principal amount of $124,000, having the ISIN No. US04011AR16 and CUSIP No. 040114AR1.

These documents indisputably demonstrate plaintiffs' continued ownership of the Bonds.

D. Concurrent Litigations Involving Argentina's Debt

In related cases, this Court has granted summary judgment to holders of Argentine bonds for the principal amounts of their bonds plus accrued interest. See Mazoral Decision at 16; Moldes Decision at 22; Prima Decision at 96; Morata Decision at 121; Sauco Decision at 15; Mazzini Decision at *3; Lightwater Decision at *6; EM Ltd. Decision at *2; DCA Decision at *2. This Court concluded that Argentina "defaulted on the bonds when it ceased to pay the interest." Lightwater Decision at *4. Accordingly, Argentina "now owes the three plaintiffs principal and accrued interest." Lightwater Decision at *4; see also EM Ltd. Decision at *2. Most recently, the Court ruled that the plaintiffs in the Mazoral, Moldes, Prima, Morata, Sauco and Mazzini actions are each entitled to summary judgment.⁶ See Mazzini Decision at *4; March 5th Tr. at pp. 16 and 33.

⁶ A true and correct copy of the transcript from March 5, 2004 hearing before the Court is annexed (00365989.DOC;)

In granting plaintiffs summary judgment, the Court rejected each of the defenses asserted by Argentina, including: (i) champerty (as defined by N.Y. Jud. L. § 489 (McKinney 2003)); (ii) the Act of State Doctrine; (iii) abuse of rights; and (iv) lack of standing. The Court denied Argentina's contention that with additional discovery it might possibly develop a set of facts showing that the Bonds were purchased primarily for the purpose of commencing a lawsuit in order to support a champerty defense. See Lightwater Decision at *4-5; Mazzini Decision at *3-*4; see also EM Ltd. Decision at *2. In addition, the Court rejected Argentina's abuse of rights defense, and Argentina conceded that the Act of State Doctrine was not a defense to plaintiffs' claims. See Lightwater Decision at *5. Moreover, the Court first rejected and later recognized Argentina's waiver of the affirmative defense that plaintiff bondholders lack capacity to sue, provided the Court determines that plaintiffs, in fact, are beneficial holders. See March 28th Tr.; Mazoral Decision at 15; Moldes Decision at 21; Prima Decision at 95; Morata Decision at 119; Sauco Decision at 14.

Thus, as this Court has already concluded, bondholders, such as plaintiffs herein, are entitled to summary judgment. There are no genuine issues of material fact with respect to Argentina's default. Nor, as this Court has already determined, are there any valid defenses. Accordingly, summary judgment is warranted.

Argument

POINT I

PLAINTIFFS SHOULD BE AWARDED SUMMARY JUDGMENT

The standards for summary judgment are well known to this Court and need not be repeated here at length. "Summary judgment is appropriate when there is no triable issue of material fact and the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law." Slattery v. Swiss Reinsurance Am. Corp., 248 F.3d 87, 91 (2d Cir.), cert. denied, 534 U.S. 951 (2001); Weinstock to the Alter Dec. as Exhibit 15 ("March 5th Tr.").

v. Columbia Univ., 224 F.3d 33, 40 (2d Cir. 2000); Branch v. Sony Music Entmt, Inc., No. 97 Civ. 9238 (TPG), 2001 WL 228108, at *2 (S.D.N.Y. Mar. 8, 2001), aff'd, 2002 WL 992289 (2d Cir. 2002).

The Supreme Court has held summary judgment to be proper even if there are disputes of material fact, when the evidence offered in opposition to the motion does not create a “genuine issue” of fact requiring trial. Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 247 (1986). Thus, the party opposing summary judgment may not rely on mere allegations to create the existence of genuine issues of material fact. Summary judgment is to be denied only if there is a proffer of some evidence that actually puts a material fact in genuine dispute. See Celotex Corp. v. Cartett, 477 U.S. 317, 321 (1986); see also Podell v. Citicorp Diners Club Inc., 112 F.3d 98, 101 (2d Cir. 1997) (a party will not survive a motion for summary judgment by merely offering conclusory allegations or denials, “but must bring forward ‘some affirmative indication that his version of relevant events is not fanciful’”) (citations omitted); Quarles v. Gen. Motors Corp., 758 F.2d 839, 840 (2d Cir. 1985); Branch, 2001 WL 228108, at *2 (“A litigant may not defeat a motion for summary judgment solely through unsupported assertions or conjecture”) (internal quotations omitted). In this regard, summary judgment is “an integral part of the Federal Rules as a whole, which are designed ‘to secure the just, speedy and inexpensive determination of every action.’” Celotex Corp., 477 U.S. at 317, 327 (1986) (citing Fed. R. Civ. P. 1).

Summary judgment is particularly appropriate where, as here, the issue before the Court is the interpretation of an unambiguous contract. See Omni Quartz, Ltd. v. CVS Corp., 287 F.3d 61, 64 (2d Cir. 2002) (“The proper interpretation of an unambiguous contract is a question of law for the court, and a dispute on such an issue may properly be resolved by summary judgment”); Combustion Eng'g, Inc. v. Imetal, 158 F. Supp.2d 327, 331 (S.D.N.Y. 2001) (“Summary judgment is appropriate in a breach of contract action where the language of the contract is unambiguous, and reasonable persons could not differ as to its meaning”), aff’d in part, vacated in part, 2002 WL 1333624 (2d Cir. 2002). As this Court has held, “[i]t is a basic principle of contract law that absent fraud, bad faith, gross mistake, or public policy considerations, contractual terms that are clear and unambiguous should be enforced.” Int’l Bus. Machs. Corp. v. Burlington Air Express, Inc., No. 98 Civ. 2503 (TPG), 2000 WL 890196 (S.D.N.Y. July 5, 2000).

Furthermore, under New York law, the holder of a debt instrument establishes a prima facie entitlement to summary judgment by demonstrating the existence of the debt obligation and the defendant’s default. See Dvoskin v. Prinz, 205 A.D.2d 661, 613 N.Y.S.2d 654, 655 (2d Dep’t 1994) (“A party establishes her prima facie entitlement to judgment on promissory notes as a matter of law by producing the promissory notes executed by the defendant and by establishing the defendant’s default thereon”); see also Sterling Nat’l Bank & Trust Co. of New York v. Fid. Mortgage Invs., 510 F.2d 870, 874-75 (2d Cir. 1975) (affirming summary judgment for creditor on note where existence of obligation and non-payment were undisputed); Valley Nat’l Bank v. Greenwich Ins. Co., 254 F. Supp.2d 448, 450 (S.D.N.Y. 2003) (“In cases involving notes and guaranties, the Court has held that a plaintiff establishes its prima facie entitlement to summary judgment by establishing the execution of the agreement at issue and nonpayment thereunder”) (internal quotations omitted).

A. Plaintiffs Have Established Their Entitlement To Summary Judgment

This Court has already granted summary judgment in the Lightwater, EM Ltd., Mazzini, Mazoral, Moldes, Prima, Morata and Sauco matters, among many others – actions addressing identical issues and involving the same defendant herein. Accordingly, plaintiffs are entitled to the application of offensive collateral estoppel in order to foreclose Argentina “from relitigating an issue that [it has] litigated unsuccessfully in another action.” LeBlanc-Sternberg v. Fletcher, 67 F.3d 412, 433-34 (2d Cir. 1995) (citing Parklane Hosiery Co. v. Shore, 439 U.S.

322, 326 n.4 (1979)), cert. denied, 518 U.S. 1017 (1996); see also Tri-Ex. Enter. v. Morgan Guar. Trust Co., 596 F. Supp. 1, 7 (S.D.N.Y. 1982) (“It is undisputed that a litigant who was not a party to the first action may assert collateral estoppel offensively in a subsequent proceeding against the party who lost the decided issue in the prior case”).⁷

However, even if this Court were willing to permit Argentina to relitigate, summary judgment is nevertheless plainly warranted. Indeed, plaintiffs have proven both of the elements of their prima facie case for summary judgment. Argentina cannot credibly dispute that each of the applicable agreements gives rise to binding obligations to pay plaintiffs in accordance with the provisions thereof. Nor can Argentina deny that it is in default. See Lightwater Decision at *1; and EM Ltd. Decision at *2. Indeed, as set forth above, Argentina concedes that “since December 2001 it has not paid interest or principal” in connection with the Bonds issued pursuant to the 1993 FAA, 1994 FAA and the FRB Agreement. Ans. at ¶¶ 20, 29 and 36. Furthermore, plaintiffs’ declarations and annexed exhibits indisputably demonstrate each of their current ownership of the Bonds. Accordingly, plaintiffs have proven both of the elements of their prima facie case for summary judgment.

⁷ The Second Circuit established a four-part test to determine if the doctrine of collateral estoppel applies:

- (1) the issues in both proceedings must be identical, (2) the issue in the prior proceeding must have been actually litigated and actually decided, (3) there must have been full and fair opportunity for the litigation in the prior proceeding, and (4) the issue previously litigated must have been necessary to support a valid and final judgment on the merits.

Gelb v. Royal Globe Ins. Co., 798 F.2d 38, 44 (2d Cir. 1986), cert. denied, 480 U.S. 948 (1987); see also LeBlanc-Sternberg, 67 F.3d at 434 (jury determination that village had violated the Fair Housing Act has collateral estoppel effect in equitable suit brought by the government seeking injunctive relief under the Act); Beck v. Levering, 947 F.2d 639, 642 (2d Cir. 1991) (affirming application of the offensive collateral estoppel doctrine), cert. denied, 504 U.S. 909 (1992); Benjamin v. Coughlin, 643 F. Supp. 351, 357 (S.D.N.Y. 1986) (applying the doctrine of offensive collateral estoppel where the issues presented were identical to those previously litigated in state court); In re Ivan Boesky Sec. Litig., 848 F. Supp. 1119, 1124 (S.D.N.Y. 1994) (concluding that the doctrine of collateral estoppel may be used offensively to preclude defendant from relitigating issues previously litigated and resolved). It cannot be disputed that Argentina was given a full and fair opportunity to litigate the issue of whether or not it is in default on its debt under the terms of the 1993 FAA, 1994 FAA and the FRB Agreement, respectively, and this Court has ruled that it is. See Lightwater Decision at *1; EM Ltd. Decision at *2. That prior determination fully supports judgment on the merits here.

B. Argentina's Affirmative Defenses Are Without Merit

Argentina asserts the following affirmative defenses: (i) failure to state a claim; (ii) the Act of State Doctrine; (iii) "plaintiffs are not acting in good faith in commencing and prosecuting this action" and, therefore, "are barred from enforcing any rights they may otherwise have;" (iv) unclean hands; (v) the doctrine of abuse of rights; (vi) champerty; (vii) lack of standing and/or capacity to sue and (viii) statute of limitations. However, as Argentina concedes, its Second and Fifth Affirmative Defenses fail, because those affirmative defenses have already been rejected by this Court. See Ans. at p. 7 n.1; see also Lightwater Decision at *5-6 (overruling Argentina's affirmative defenses of international comity, the act of state doctrine and abuse of rights); EM Ltd. Decision at *4 (same). Furthermore, the Court recognized that Argentina agreed to waive the affirmative defense that plaintiff bondholders lack capacity to sue, provided the Court determines that plaintiffs, in fact, are beneficial holders. See March 28th Tr.; Mazoral Decision at 15; Moldes Decision at 21; Prima Decision at 95; Morata Decision at 119; Sauco Decision at 14. None of Argentina's remaining defenses shield it from liability either.

1. The Failure To State A Claim Defense

Argentina's First Affirmative Defense for failure to state a claim is unavailing. Certainly, plaintiffs have alleged all the requisite elements under New York law for a claim of breach of contract, including the existence of the contract, their own performance, Argentina's breach and damages. See Rexnord Holdings, Inc. v. Bidermann, 21 F.3d 522, 525 (2d Cir. 1994).

2. The Champerty Defense

The champerty defense in Section 489 of the Judiciary Law has similarly been rejected by this Court. Indeed, there is nothing in the record to suggest that plaintiffs purchased their Bonds for anything other than a normal investment purpose. In Lightwater, this Court concluded that "where a bond is purchased with the intent to collect on that bond, the statute is not violated even though there is also an intention to collect by lawsuit if necessary." Lightwater

Decision at *4; see also EM Ltd. Decision at *3. Most recently, this defense and the request to seek discovery with respect to this defense were rejected in the Mazzini Action. See Mazzini Decision at * 3-4; March 5th Tr. at pp. 32-34; see also Mazoral Decision at 15; Moldes Decision at 21; Prima Decision at 95; Morata Decision at 121; Sauco Decision at 15.⁸ Here, the facts are no different than in those cases where the Court rejected the champerty defense. Accordingly, here too, the defense is meritless.

3. The “Unclean Hands” Defense

In addition, Argentina’s defense of “unclean hands” also fails as a matter of law, because it is not available in an action seeking money damages. See, e.g., Aniero Concrete Co., Inc. v. New York City Constr. Auth., No. 94 Civ. 3506, 2000 WL 863208, at *10 (S.D.N.Y. June 27, 2000) (“unclean hands is an ‘equitable defense to equitable claims,’ not to actions at law which seek money damages”) (citations omitted); 518 East 80th Street Co., LLC v. Smith, 251 A.D.2d 215, 216, 674 N.Y.S.2d 680, 681 (1st Dep’t 1998) (tenant’s affirmative defense of unclean hands, based on allegations of breach of lease and the landlord’s stated desire to evict, was an equitable one that could not be asserted against the landlord’s causes of action for rent arrears and legal fees). This defense must also be rejected as a matter of fact, because under the unambiguous terms of the 1993 FAA, 1994 FAA and the FRB Agreement, plaintiffs are entitled to payments of principal and interest that are due and payable.

4. The Statute of Limitations Defense

Argentina also asserts a statute of limitations defense. This defense too is meritless.

Pursuant to the 1993 FAA the 1994 FAA, the statute of limitations on claims against Argentina for missed interest payments is five (5) years. See Compl. Ex. A at A-17; Ex.

⁸ Argentina’s defense of lack of good faith is no more than a restatement of the champerty defense and is therefore equally without merit.

C at 9-10. The FRB, however, does not specify a statute of limitation for claims arising thereunder. As such, the New York statute of limitations of six (6) years for breach of contract applies. See CPLR §§ 201; 213; see also Compl. Ex. E at 101.

As set forth above, Argentina defaulted on the Bonds issued pursuant to the 1993 FAA, the 1994 FAA and the FRB on December 24, 2001. The statute of limitations on those Bonds would have begun to run as of the first missed payment by Argentina following the December 2001 default. Each missed payment represents an independent cause of action against Argentina. See Bay Area Laundry & Dry Cleaning Pension Trust Fund v. Ferbar Corp. of California, 118 S. Ct. 553, 522 U.S. 192, 210 (1997); see also Ediciones Quiroga, S.L., v. Fall River Music, Inc., 1995 WL 366287, at *1 (S.D.N.Y. June 20, 1995); Phoenix Acquisition Corp. v. Campcore, Inc., 596 N.Y.S.2d 752, 753 (1993).

Since the Complaint in this action was filed on December 20, 2007, only claims based on interest payments under the 1993 FAA and the 1994 FAA that were due prior to December 20, 2002 may be barred by the statute of limitations defense. Specifically, the following Bonds had interest payments due prior to December 20, 2002: ISIN No. US040114FC91 on March 15, 2002; ISIN No. US040114AH34 on June 20, 2002; ISIN No. US04011AR16 on January 30, 2002; ISIN No. US04011AN02 on September 4, 2002; ISIN No. US040114BE93 on April 7, 2002; US040114GG96 on June 19, 2002; ISIN No. US040114GH79 on June 19, 2002. Although it appears that these initial interest payments that were due prior to December 20, 2002 may be barred by the five-year statute of limitations, Plaintiffs' claims with respect to the subsequent interest payments on these Bonds, which represent independent causes of action against Argentina, clearly survive. Moreover, Plaintiffs' claims based on Bonds issued pursuant to the FRB Agreement survive in their entirety, because of six-year statute of limitations has not lapsed with respect to any interest payments on these Bonds.

Accordingly, Argentina's defense of statute of limitations does not bar Plaintiffs' claims against Argentina in their entirety.

POINT II

ARGENTINA'S DISCOVERY REQUESTS SHOULD BE STRICKEN

As the foregoing illustrates, Argentina's Requests should be stricken pursuant to Rules 26(c), 26(d) and 34(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. Plainly, Argentina has served the Requests to further burden plaintiffs and delay these proceedings.

As set forth above, this Court has narrowed the types of documents that plaintiffs are obligated to produce in order to demonstrate their ownership of the Bonds, which documents plaintiffs have attached to their accompanying declarations.

Notwithstanding, Argentina seeks documents in the Requests that are beyond those prescribed by the Court. Specifically, the Requests seek the following:

[a]ll confirmations and account statements concerning [plaintiffs'] purchase or acquisition of Republic Bonds. If [plaintiffs] acquired Republic Bonds at any time prior to December 2001, all confirmations and account statements establishing proof of beneficial ownership as of December 2001.

This Request is clearly far broader than what this Court has held to be sufficient to demonstrate plaintiffs' ownership of the Bonds. Accordingly, and for this reason alone, the Requests should be stricken.

Moreover, Argentina has offered no rationale for why such broad discovery has any relevance to the question of whether plaintiffs own the Bonds on which they have sued. Indeed, when faced with virtually identical requests in related proceedings, this Court summarily denied the requests. See, e.g., Mazoral Decision at 16; Moldes Decision at 22; Prima Decision at 96; Morata Decision at 121; Sauco Decision at 15; Cilli v. The Republic of Argentina, 04 Civ. 6594 (TPG), Slip Op. at pp. 17-18 (S.D.N.Y. March 20, 2006);⁹ Mazzini Decision at *3-4;

⁹ A true and correct copy of Cilli v. The Republic of Argentina, 04 Civ. 6594 (TPG), Slip Op. (S.D.N.Y. March 20, 2006) is annexed to the Alter Dec. as Exhibit 16.

Lightwater Decision at *4; EM Ltd. Decision at *2; and March 5th Tr. at pp. 30-32. Likewise here, the Requests should be stricken.

Furthermore, Argentina's discovery requests seek discovery with respect to the champerty defense. As set forth above, however, the Court repeatedly rejected that defense. Accordingly, the Court should not allow Argentina to delay these proceedings by permitting it to take the unbridled and baseless discovery it now seeks.

Conclusion

For the foregoing reasons, it is respectfully submitted that plaintiffs' motions for summary judgment and to strike defendant's discovery requests should be granted in their entirety.
